Each town is requested to send a delegation equal in number to its representation in both branches of the General Assembly.

By order of the City Republican Committee.

Newport Sept. 13.

Hell and Everett.

The candidates of the "Constitutional Union" party are highly honorable men, and in every way well qualified to fill the high offices for which they are candidates. Their friends cannot expect to elect them in the present state of the canvass. The only possibility which they can hope for, is that they may compass the defeat of Lincoln and Hamlin, and thereby secure the election of Lane by the Senate. Those who vote for Hell and Everett, therefore indirectly vote for Lane, precisely as the Abolitionists in 1844 voted against Henry Clay for Birney, and elected James K. Polk. There are very few men in Rhode Island, we apprehend, who prefer the election of Lane to Lincoln.

Gleanings.

A man, a periodical dealer, has been sentenced to be hanged in Camden, Arkansas, for selling copies of the New York Tribune in that place. Our Southern neighbors had better will themselves in after the manner of the Chinese.

A clerk of the Superior Court of New York, has eloped with a strange woman, leaving his wife and three children penniless.

A young girl, between thirteen and fourteen years of age, of respectable parents, in Allison Prairie, Ill., gave birth to twins, on Wednesday last.

It is stated that large contracts have been made in Missouri for corn at twenty cents per bushel.

Last Friday Kansas had the first rainy day since last winter.

A Sergeant, in the British army, writes that, at Canton, a prayer meeting was started by him, in his regiment, and in the space of about five months one hundred and fifty soldiers had been converted.

A large number of Kansas people are already fleeing from famine and winter. Long trains of wagons bearing the involuntary exiles with their goods and chattels, can now daily be seen passing through Leavenworth on their way to Nebraska and Iowa.

In Philadelphia, on Saturday, while Mr. and Mrs. Lewis were about taking a carriage to attend the funeral of a neighbor, a child of theirs which was on the balcony of the house, watching the carriage, accidentally lost its balance and fell to the pavement dashing out its brains.

As Gen. Pierce was riding on Thursday at Concord, N. H., his horse took fright at a load of barrels and turned around a corner, throwing him out of the wagon. Gen. Pierce was stunned for a few moments and slightly bruised in the face, though not seriously.

John Fishback went upon the dome of St. Patrick's church, West Troy, on Thursday, in a state of partial intoxication, to paint the dome. Walking by way of bravado on the narrow ledge at the base of the dome, in spite of the dissuasions of his companion, he lost his balance and fell head long 61 feet, to the pavement, and was dashed to pieces.

An English Paper gives the particulars of a singular death of an old lady. She went into the kitchen one evening, and seeing a cockroach running across the floor, she stamped upon it to kill it. In doing so she broke both bones of her left leg, producing a compound fracture, from the effects of which she died in the course of a few days.

The colored population of Philadelphia numbers from twenty thousand to twenty-five thousand. They own property to the amount of nearly three millions of dollars, and have churches and schools valued at from four hundred thousand to five hundred thousand dollars.

Celebration of Perry's victory.

The statue of PERRY, inaugurated Monday at Cleveland, was made by Mr. WM. WALCOTT, a native of Ohio. The statue is eight feet in height, and stands upon a pedestal of Rhode Island granite seventeen feet in height, so that the entire height of the monument is twenty-five feet. It stands in the centre of the Park and commands a view of the lake that was the scene of PERRY's exploits. The statue is set upon a block of pure white marble from a Vermont quarry. The propriety of placing it upon Rhode Island granite is apparent when the fact is noted that PERRY was a native of that State, and that his fellow officers were chiefly Rhode Islanders.

On the front of the pedestal is a medallion, representing in bas relief in miniature, the battle at that point of time when PERRY passed in a small boat his flag to the disabled ship, and transferred his flag to the peak of the Niagara. The monument has been erected at a cost of $10,000.

Length of Service of our Leading Statesmen.

The Cincinnati Enquirer occasionally indulges in some pleasant and interesting reminiscences. We quote the following from a late number of that journal:

John Quincy Adams was Minister to the Netherlands, under Washington, 1794-98; Minister to Portugal, 1798-7; Minister to Prussia, during the administration of his father, 1797-1803; Senator, 1803-83; Minister to Russia, under Madison, 1809-13; Commissioner to Ghent, 1813-14; Minister to England, 1815-17; Secretary of State, under Monroe, 1817-24; President, 1824-29; and member of Congress from 1831 to 1847, the date of his death. Thus, in a period of fifty three years, the intervals between the laying down of one office and the assumption of another, amount, when added together, to less than two years.

The official career of General Lewis Cass has been even longer than that of Mr. Adams. Commencing as a member of the first State Legislature of Ohio, in 1802; he has been in high public position ever since, a period of fifty-eight years. Within that time he has been Governor of a Territory, Indian Superintendent, Secretary of War, Minister to France, United States Senator for twelve years, candidate for President, and Secretary of State. When he leaves the Secretary of State's Department, in 1861, he will complete a service of about sixty years in the high offices of the government. He is, indeed, the patriarch of our statesmen, so far as length of official service is concerned.

Martin Van Buren, while he has not been in office as long as some of our statesmen, is the only one who has filled the four highest, most dignified and powerful positions under the American constitution. He has been Minister to England, Secretary of State, Vice President and President. His public life commenced in 1808, as surrogate of Columbia county, New York, which he left for the State Senate, and then as Attorney General of the State, United States Senator, Governor, Minister to England, Secretary of State, Vice President and President. He was constantly before the people as an important personage down to his retirement from the Presidency in 1844, a period of thirty-three prominent years in the highest offices of the Baltimore convention in 1844, and he ran as the free-soil candidate for President in 1848.

Henry Clay's public career commenced in 1807 as a member of the Senate of the United States, and concluded as a member of the same body in 1862, an interval of forty-five years. He was United States Senator, member of the House, Speaker of that body for twelve years—a longer period than any other man ever served in that capacity—Minister to Ghent as one of the commissioners to conclude the peace with Great Britain in 1814, and Secretary of State from 1826 to 1829.

Thomas H. Benton served a longer period in Congress than any other of our public men. He entered the United States Senate when Missouri was admitted in 1821, and continued there until 1851, a period of thirty years. He never held any other office.

John C. Calhoun entered the House of Representatives in 1811; served there until 1817, when he became Secretary of War under Mr. Monroe. In 1824 he was elected Vice President, and re-elected in 1828. In 1831 he resigned the station of Vice President to become a United States Senator from South Carolina. The reason of this extraordinary step was that he might champion the cause of nullification in the Senate, and reply to the arguments of Mr. Webster on that subject, which were producing an extraordinary effect on the country. He continued in the Senate until 1844, when he became Secretary of State, and was a member of it in 1850, when he died.

Daniel Webster came to the House of Representatives in 1814 from New Hampshire. In 1820, he was elected from Boston, Mass., to which city he had removed. In 1828 he was elected to the United States Senate. In 1841 was Secretary of State. In 1850 he again took charge of the Department of State, and filled that position at the time of his death. His political career lasted about thirty-six years.

The Disaster on Lake Michigan.

The following statement of a passenger, Mr. M. E. Smith of Ontonagon, Ill., is given:

"I was asleep in the mate's room at the time of the accident. The watchman came in and told the first mate that a vessel had run into the steamer's port side, just forward of the wheelhouse, and stove a hole in her. The mate and myself went directly on deck, and found Capt. Wilson there. The steamer had on board some 150 to 180 head of cattle. The captain ordered the cattle to be thrown overboard. They were thrown over by the crew.

"The first and second mate went in the life-boat to stop the leak. They found the hole so low that they could not get at it. The steamer was listed over, but they could not get at the leak.

"The Captain ordered all the passengers to get life-preservers; I think most of them did; he then ordered the crew to take axes and break open the state room doors, so that none should be left in them; I think nearly every passenger got out, although I pulled one out as we floated by the state room.

"A short time after this the engine fell through the bottom of the vessel; I should think 15 minutes after the schooner struck her, the hull went down immediately, leaving the hurricane deck floating; a great portion of the passengers were on the hurricane deck when the hull went down; the rest of them jumped off very soon, thinking that would save them; the hurricane deck soon floated into five pieces; there were 25 on the part on which I was; the Captain was on this; there were some military men from Milwaukee; and six or seven ladies; the other four pieces went off with a number on each.

"We held up cabin doors for sails, and came down smoothly as far as Waukegan. When within a few rods of the shore, the raft capsized, some of us got back on her, among them the Captain and myself. The Captain got one of the ladies back on. A big sea came, and washed us off. The Captain was the last man on her; I heard him cheering the passengers, another sea came, washed him off and he drowned. Of the 25 who were on her only 6 were saved.

"After the life boat was launched, a yawl which was aft, was launched; two boats were launched from the hurricane deck; I knew only two men on the raft, the Captain and Mr. Wald, the Clerk of the National Miss at Ontonagon.

"When it became light in the morning the four rafts were in sight, and a great many floating on pieces of wreck. The Captain called to each of the rafts and inquired if his Southern friends were aboard. They answered from each, that they were not.

"The friends referred to were probably Col. F. A. Lumsden and family of New Orleans, and Mr. Garth and family of Kentucky. "The life-boat, in which were the two mates, came in below Waukegan. One of the boats, from the hurricane deck, started with twelve passengers, eight of whom were saved. The boat upset twice. A lady and child who were on this boat were washed away once, and picked up. They were washed off the second time, and drowned. Our informant stated that she never spoke after leaving the steamer. Of the eight saved on this boat seven belonged in Milwaukee and left before we could get their names."

An honest man's the noblest work of the Lord! exclaimed a Hardsell Baptist; and then, after a pause, he added, "but the Lord hasn't had a job in the world for fifty years. 'Pass around the sasser.'"

A fashionable lady stepped into a telegraph office at a neighboring town a few days since, and on seeing the apparatus, asked the operator, "Boy is that a Sewing Machine?"

The New London Star says that the weeds on some of the sidewalks in that city are five feet high!

TURNER J.

AFTERNOON SESSION.

THURSDAY, Sept. 13.

State vs. Daniel Maher, charged with larceny. Adjudged to be guilty and sentenced to three months imprisonment in the State Prison for the term of one year.

State vs. Nicholas S. Boss, for murder. Continued to Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock.

State vs. Antonio Sylvia for murder. Continued to Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock.

State vs. Nicholas S. Boss for assault with intent to kill.

In each of the last three cases the City Solicitor appeared for the government Van Zandt & Rice for the prisoners.

The Storm.

The storm of Wednesday night was one of the most severe which has been experienced in this vicinity for years, surpassing in violence even the annual ice storm. Several vessels dragged their anchors, and among them schooner Express, which dragged ashore and carried away her rudder, but was afterwards got off and anchored in the inner harbor. The Perry had an uncommonly rough time coming down, and was boarded by one sea in the after gangway which swept nearly the whole length of the boat.

THE TRIAL FOR MURDER.—We understand that on account of the illness of General Van Zandt, who has been retained as counsel for the defence in the case State vs. Boss and Sylvia, for murder, the examination has been postponed from yesterday, and will take place at the Court House to-day at 2 o'clock, P. M.

THE EXCURSION.—The Perry took up quite a crowd to Rocky Point yesterday, notwithstanding the cool weather which prevented a great many from availing themselves of this last opportunity for the season of visiting that famous place of resort.

Lines on the death of Miss Harriet Ives of Providence, at the residence of Prof. Gammon in this city on the 28th of Aug. last.

"HE GIVETH HIS BELOVED SLEEP." Say not, dear Mother, that I died, but say "She fell asleep in Jesus." Thus she spoke Our dearest child, the darling of our hearts As joyously she bade us all adieu And closed her eyes on earth—to wake in Heaven.

Kind friends drew nigh with words of hope and cheer Reminding us, that in the bloom of youth, Intelligence, affection, judgment, wealth, All she had, or hoped to have on earth; Our Harriet, our precious child had given For Jesus, the Beloved of her soul The consecration had owed and blessed And she had gone to reap a just reward. But not with thoughts of blameless life, or hopes Of Heaven, a just reward, had she been taught To work for Jesus. In the Cross alone She gloried. Not in merits of her own But in the spotless robe, that Christ had wrought.

Her soul was now arrayed, as peacefully "She fell asleep in Jesus." Stricken ones, May God, the very God of peace and love Send you your sorrowing hearts the Comforter, To dwell with you, and fill the aching void, This death hath done!

And yet, we should not say She died, but say "She sweetly fell asleep in Jesus."

The Lady Elgin Disaster—Coroner's Investigation.

CHICAGO, Sept. 12.—A Coroner's jury in investigating the Lady Elgin disaster. A passenger testified to seeing a light on the schooner before the collision, but none afterwards.

Thomas Cummings testified that if the schooner's helm had been put hard up, the accident would not have happened, except through gross negligence. It appeared to him that the helm was put down instead of up.

"The mate of the Augusta" did not know whether there was a light on the schooner when the collision took place. He heard the captain order the helm to be put hard up, and the helmsman responded, but the schooner did not change her course, not answering readily.

One of the crew, who was stationed for ward did not see the steamer's light until the helm was ordered to be put hard up. Forty bodies have been recovered, mostly of persons belonging in Milwaukee.
